WASHINGTON, August 13.

Arrest of Parties for Attempting to Escape the Draft—Arrival of Gens. Geary and Augur—The Wounded from the Battle Field—Case of Officers Allen and Wise—A Speech from Hon. Cassius M. Clay—District Volunteers—Alexandria Affairs.

A squadron of cavalry marched down Pennsylvania avenue about 1 o'clock to-day, guarding about a dozen young men who were on foot, and who had been arrested during last night while attempting to pass from this city into Dixie. Some of them are said to have resided on Capitol Hill. They generally had carpet sacks, &c., as if prepared for travel. They were placed in the old capitol prison.

Gen. Geary, wounded in the late battle near Culpeper, has arrived in the city. He has not lost an arm as has been stated, the wound being in the flesh or muscles of the upper portion of the arm, by a musket ball, which was promptly extracted. Gen. Augur is also in the city, and as his physician considers that his wound will admit of it, he will leave the city to-morrow for his home in western New York. He is at present at Gen. Ricketts' residence. Two wounded officers were conveyed on stretchers to the railroad depot this afternoon to go North.

The disabled from the Culpepper battle have arrived to the number of over one thousand, both here and at Alexandria.—About 600, including some soldiers that are sick, reached Washington by railroad early this morning, and were conveyed in ambulances to various hospitals. The design is to accommodate the most of the wounded in the hospitals at Alexandria. Many of those brought down here are only slightly injured, but either in the arms or legs.

As indicated yesterday, the cause of the arrest of the detective officers A. R. Allen and John H. Wise, was in connection with the capture of the slaves of Mr. T. E. Berry, of Maryland, under process as provided by the court here. Gen. Wadsworth, the Military Governor, takes the ground that the Circuit Court had no right to appoint commissioners under the fugitive slave law, and therefore the officers were kidnappers. Upon the warrant of Samuel S. Phillips, one of the commissioners appointed by the Circuit Court, they arrested seven slaves claimed by Mr. Berry, who, after an examination by Mr. Phillips, were restored to the owner.
