

Everyone's Got A Narrative

(aka a "Black History" or "Black History" by Steve Campagna)

I grew up in a household which valued two things above all else: Catholicism and Psychotherapy.

Obviously, as I grew older, the teachings of my therapist and my faith grew wildly in opposition of one another.

Like most teenagers, I found nothing but disappointment in the pages of the Bible. Its teachings of restraint and devotion to faith were not the answers I sought, however they were indoctrinated, burned into my mind. Every pubescent thought, feeling or body hair made me think I was one step closer to ultimate damnation... Therapy, ironically, provided nothing but further confusion.

In fact, the advice I received in therapy was quite the opposite of what God would've wanted.

Why, and how did that make you feel? It seems to me your repressing a lot of emotions of guilt.

Everyone's Got A Narrative
 I grew up in a household which valued two things above all else: Catholicism and Psychotherapy.

... and I want to thank God especially for our ability to communicate openly and honestly as a family...

Like most teenagers I found nothing but disappointment in the pages of the Bible. Its teachings of restraint and devotion to faith were not the answers I sought, however they were indoctrinated, burned into my mind. A very pubescent thought, feeling or body hair made me think I was one step closer to ultimate damnation. Therapy, ironically, provided nothing but further confusion.

Obviously, as I grew older, the teachings of my therapist and my faith grew wildly in opposition of one another.

Oh, young one so uncommon in the youth of today. One's fears can be very confusing and full of fear... You must stay true to the teachings of the Bible. These are a test of faith. I seek a more solid in scripture. My child or perhaps double take...

Father, I'm feeling depressed. Being a teenager sucks.

In fact the advice I received in therapy was quite the opposite of what God would've wanted.

Let me suggest perhaps this sheet from a lot of my texts.

Seek Pleasure? vs. Salvation vs. Pathway to set some...
 Oh seek the cure? vs. Tools for finding the press...
 I seek pleasure vs. What? vs. Mashed...

The most Fun: Comics Response 2
By Store Liam pag 10

GRAPHIC NOVEL

FICTION HEAVENS BOOKS

Upon finding his daughter's graphic narrative in the book store, Bruce Bechdel finds his life of carefully covered, closeted homosexuality has been created into an award winning book. His secret is exposed to know should they pay a mere fee of 14.95. His pedophilic, homosexual behavior plastered to the pages of a glorified comic book! The horror, the horror,